Where Are You Now?

Use the chart below to put into perspective the various stages of your moral conduct throughout your life. Be sure to use a pencil because mistakes do occur. This lesson is going to require a lot of honesty with yourself. Only you know how you were acting at ten years old.

This is based on the assumption that we all started out as good kids, at least on the day we were born anyway.

Step one: Pencil in the triangle at the top of the graph that indicates your age at your first prison incarceration.

Step two: Start in the upper left hand corner of the graph and continue the line that was started for you. Move from left to right and try your best to indicate how you have morally lived your life up to present day.
